

1. Land Use and Transportation Element

Development of property in the community affects the roadway system and circulation throughout the community and region. In addition, the ability to move around the community affects decisions on the appropriate use of land. This Element describes the physical conditions of property and roadways and sets forth goals and policies on a regional, City-wide and neighborhood level. This Element is closely linked with the Community Development Element.