SUNNYVALE NAMES NEW PUBLIC WORKS DIRECTOR

SUNNYVALE, Calif. – Sunnyvale City Manager Gary Luebbers has named Kent Steffens the City's new Public Works Director. Steffens is set to begin work with the City on August 1, replacing retiring Director Marvin Rose.

Steffens has spent the past dozen years with the City of Menlo Park, first as Director of Public Works, then Interim City Manager, Interim Assistant City Manager and, finally, as Deputy City Manager.

As Sunnyvale's Director of Public Works, Steffens will oversee more than 180 employees and be in charge of a variety of City programs and services, including streets, engineering, parks and project management.

The Public Works Department has recently gone through an organizational change as City Manager Gary Luebbers carved out a new Utilities Department from Public Works in an extended effort to create a more-responsive staffing structure.
